

Abstract of the Invention

Disclosed are methods for repairing seed layers prior to subsequent metallization during the manufacture of electronic devices. Also disclosed are electronic devices containing substantially continuous seed layers.